2 Stroudsburg Women Shot In E. Stroudsburg Fracas

TWO Stroudsburg women were shot yesterday at 11 a.m. in the apartment occupied by Edna Mae Price, 32, over the East Stroudsburg Savings and Loan Association at the corner of Washington and S. Courtland Sts., East Stroudsburg.

Police identified the wounded women as Irene Matsen, 30, and Sophie Achtermann, 35, both of 77 N. Second St. (Rear), Stroudsburg. Miss Achtermann was listed late last night by a Monroe County General Hospital spokesman as "critical."

Miss Price was listed in "fair" condition after treatment for an overdose of medication the spokesman added. Doctors emptied her stomach with the use of a stomach pump. Miss Matsen was treated for a gunshot wound in her right index finger. She was released after treatment.

Miss Matsen told East Stroudsburg Police the three women had "hid words" and Miss Price shot at Miss Achtermann, wounding her in the stomach. The shot also hit Miss Matsen's right index finger. A second .22 caliber shot went through Miss Achtermann's right arm.

Police said Miss Matsen had been living with Miss Price until recently, when she moved to Miss Achtermann's home. The two women went to the Price apartment, police said, in response to a telephone call from Miss Price. They had gone to get the remainder of Miss Matsen's clothing and belongings.

In the altercation which followed, Miss Price took a .22 pistol and shot at Miss Achtermann. Miss Matsen was wounded as she tried to shield Miss Achtermann with her hand.

East Stroudsburg Chief of Police Travis Seese has ordered a guard stationed in the hallway outside Miss Price's hospital room. Charges will be brought against her on "attempt to kill."

Justice of the Peace, Chester Staples, East Stroudsburg, said last night, "Information has been filed with me on the case." He said a preliminary hearing would be held as soon as the principles involved are well enough to attend it.

"In the event a prima facie case is established by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania," Staples said, "the case will be turned over to the court, as a felony is involved."

Khru Warns City Dwellers Not To Expect Wage Hike

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev warns Soviet city dwellers they can expect no wage increases because of new higher meat and butter prices, and they face a crackdown if they "do not wish to understand."

Khrushchev said such people "should be called to order." The warning was in a speech Saturday to a meeting of 5,000 young Communist League members and rebroadcast in full Saturday as if for further emphasis.

In the Soviet Union there are many ways of calling people to order. These range all the way from public criticism to social and work discrimination and even to legal accusations of working to oppose the party and government. Prison doors or exile to work camps sometimes await such conduct.

From beginning to end, the speech called for understanding that the decision to raise meat prices by 30 per cent and butter by 25 per cent was necessary. More money must be raised to finance agricultural mechanization and to pay farmers higher prices so they will produce more meat and butter.

Every threat of pressure was matched by Khrushchev with appeals almost in a tone of pleading for understanding that defenses and money for continued industrialization could not be cut, not even to improve lagging agriculture.

Khrushchev said increased pay will go only to farmers who produce the meat.

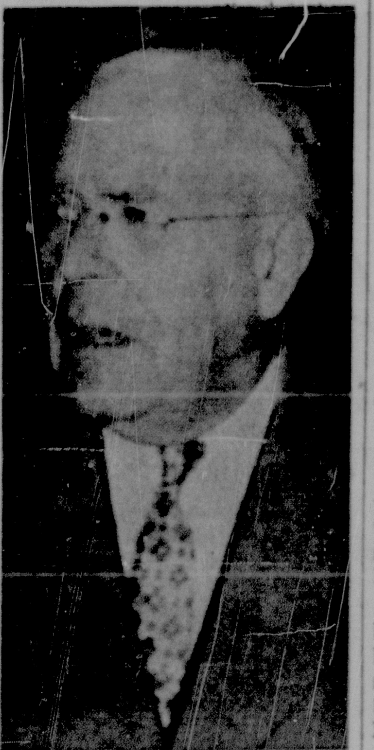

To those who wanted higher salaries to meet the increased cost he said: "The more money there is, the longer the queues in the meat shops will become unless the output of meat is increased. This must be understood and explained. Those who do not understand or do not wish to understand should be called to order."

Stahl said at his home Saturday night his office checked state police files "to see if there is any possible foundation for such allegations" made in newspapers.

State police officers have been assigned to look into the reports, state police Commissioner Frank McCortney said.

Bloody Battles Rage In Caracas Streets

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Bloody street battles raged in Puerto Cabello Sunday night between government troops and remnants of a leftist-led marine garrison that revolted against President Romulo Betancourt's regime.

Unofficial reports from the big port city 65 miles west of Caracas put government casualties at 120 dead and 300 wounded. There was no immediate estimate of rebel losses.

The reports said the revolt—the second in a month against the anti-Castro government—will go down as one of the bloodiest in Venezuela's history.

The government claimed earlier it had smashed the rebel force and driven it out of the Puerto Cabello naval base with a concentrated land, sea and air attack. But reports said bitter fighting continued in downtown Puerto Cabello.

The reports from Puerto Cabello indicated the rebels still held an ancient castle stronghold. They said civilians had joined remnants of the marine rebels and formed several pockets of resistance that government troops had not been able to crack.

A garrison of 400 marines at Puerto Cabello opened the second uprising in pre-dawn darkness, taking over the navy base, Venezuela's biggest, and issuing a call for other armed forces to join in.

In Caracas, about 135 miles from Puerto Cabello, the government ordered Cudberr's jet fighters to bomb and strafe the rebels while three destroyers zeroed in on the rebels from the harbor. Paratroopers and artillery units moved in by land.

Cleanup Operation
The loyalist forces overran the navy base Saturday night and opened a cleanup operation against scattered rebel holdouts in the city at 6 a.m. There were reports of some resistance as the holdouts sought to break through to the mountains.

The Interior Ministry announced that the leader of the rebellion, Capt. Manuel Ponte Rodriguez, had surrendered after the morning attack.

Rodriguez' second in command, Lt. Cmdr. Pedro Medina Silva, surrendered to loyalist forces during the night.

The government charged both Rodriguez and Silva had been in sympathy with the unsuccessful marine revolt four weeks ago at Carupano. Officials charged that revolt was part of a Communist plot to set up a Cuban-type regime in Venezuela. After the defeat of the Carupano uprising the government banned the Communist party and its ally, the Movement of Revolutionary Left.

The Interior Ministry said the latest uprising was similar in every way, and an official announcement pointed out the fact it had failed to attract support from anywhere else in the country. The announcement also asserted that peasants in Puerto Cabello had picked up machetes and joined loyalist forces in driving the rebels out.

Worst Single Crash In Aviation History

PARIS (AP) — An Air France jetliner filled with American tourists crashed and burned on take-off Sunday, killing 130 persons in aviation's worst single plane disaster.

Only two persons, both Air France hostesses, survived. The death toll rose to 130 Sunday night when one of the chartered Boeing jet's stewards, who had been pulled from the flaming wreckage, died in a Paris hospital.

The crash took the lives of 121 members of the Atlanta, Ga., Art Association, en route home; eight crew members, and Air France's Atlanta manager.

The worst previous single plane disaster was the crash of a U.S. Air Force Globemaster near Tokyo June 18, 1953 that killed 129 servicemen.

One of the two young air hostesses said everything had happened so quickly she hardly had time to realize she was involved in a disaster.

Hostess Speaks
Pretty Francoise Authie said in a hospital where she was taken for treatment and observation: "We didn't have time to know what was going on. It was so fast, so sudden. I didn't have time to realize what was going on."

Miss Authie, with her co-worker, Jacqueline Gillet, were taken to a military hospital not far from the airport.

Tragedy struck shortly before 1 p.m. as the big jet headed for the long Atlantic crossing in clear, sunny weather.

Its four jet engines plumed, and it swiftly gathered speed as it headed down the runway at Orly Airfield for takeoff.

A French gendarme watching it hurtle down the runway said that the plane apparently ran into trouble just as it hit flight speed. It lifted off the ground only a few feet, then pancaked back again, smashing airport marker lights.

Pieces of the craft began to drop from it as it thundered through a fence at the end of the runway and roared on toward the village of Villeneuve le Roi, flames beginning to spout from its forward end.

Plunged Through Fence
It plunged through a fence, veered to the left and then rammed into a rolling, wooded slope where it burst into flames with a dull roar.

In seconds it was a towering mass of flame, the heat so intense that green trees smoked and burned.

Startled residents of Villeneuve le Roi heard the dull boom of the explosion as the fuel tanks went up. Some huddled fearfully in their gray stone houses, aware that tragedy had occurred and too fearful to go out.

The Air France charter plane, running wild and yawing as it ripped through fences and gouged into the hill, had just missed the small concentration of houses a short distance from the runway's end.

Within moments after the disaster, fire-fighting units from Orly were headed toward the scene.

As the news spread, fire units from nearby towns sped to the scene. Police from Orly cordoned off the area as both police and firemen vainly tried to reach those in the burning aircraft.

One wing tilted upward toward the sky, smoke trailing from it. Virtually the entire control cabin was wrenched off the nose of the plane and lay to one side, burning fiercely.

Plane's Tail Torn Off

The tail of the plane was torn off in the plunge into the trees, and it was this that saved the lives of the two young hostesses. They were thrown clear and escaped the fire which swept through the fuselage.

Some time later, a steward, Marcel Lugin, was pulled alive from the wreckage. He was gravely burned and in serious condition.

Firemen used water and fire foam on the burning fuel, but it burned so fiercely that those inside must have perished almost at once. The fire was fed by thousands of gallons of fuel the plane had taken on in preparation for the flight to Atlanta, via New York.

Orly Airport officials were grim and saddened by the tragedy, the second worst in all aviation history.

Only one other air disaster had taken a greater toll. That was the collision of two airliners over New York City Dec. 16, 1960, that killed 134 persons.

Bodies were put into ambulances and taken along a highway busy with Sunday traffic to Paris mortuaries.

Police Stand Guard
Scores of police stood guard in a wide perimeter around the crash site, but roads were crowded with the curious, anxious to see the wreckage.

Air France officials were at a loss as to what might have happened to the plane.

Witnesses said it rolled down the runway at the normal high speed of jet aircraft takeoffs, barely lifted, then suddenly dropped back and continued to roll swiftly along out of control.

Crash Took Lives
The crash took the lives of Del Paige, president of the association, Mrs. Paige, and several members of the association's board of trustees.

Mayor Ivan Allen arranged to fly to Paris Sunday night to lend any assistance possible in the aftermath of the tragedy. Allen suggested that a citywide memorial service be held to give Atlanta residents an opportunity to pay tribute to the victims and express civic grief.

Gov. Ernest Vandiver expressed the sorrow felt throughout the state over the loss of so many of its cultural and business leaders.

Vandiver extended deepest sympathy to the many families affected, saying "along with all Georgians we invoke the comfort of the Divine Providence upon them in this dark hour."

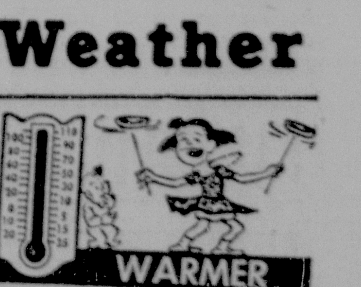

Some of the crash victims were members of the First Presbyterian Church. It's minister, Dr. Harry Effield, learned of the crash a few minutes before the 11 a.m. service began.

After making a brief announcement about the tragedy, Dr. Effield offered a special prayer for the victims and their families. He changed his announced sermon to one on the Resurrection.

Stroud Twp. Tax Collector Clarifies Tax Statements

TAX bills for Stroud Twp. taxpayers were mailed this past week and should have been received by this date. Many telephone calls were received in regards as to which taxes are payable and why bills were mailed two months earlier than usual.

The Board of Supervisors of Stroud Township requested that their tax bills be mailed two months earlier as it will eliminate two months interest on money borrowed for current operations. Also, since county and school taxes for the township will not be mailed until August 1st, it will give the taxpayer an advantage of spreading payments of taxes.

The bills just mailed consist of amounts due only on township (or road) taxes and there will be no duplication of these taxes when mailing bills for the county and school.

Ask Raise For Hunting Licenses

HARRISBURG (AP)—The executive director of the State Game Commission says he will ask the commission to consider increasing the price of hunting licenses in Pennsylvania.

M. C. Golden said in an interview with the Harrisburg Sunday Patriot-News that he will present the proposal to the commission when it meets June 21-23.

However, he did not specify how much of an increase he would recommend. Hunting licenses have cost $3.15 since 1949, the year of the last price increase.

"We need a minimum of $7 million to run our present program," Golden said. "That means that the resident hunting license would have to cost $5."

"For a stepped-up program, we would need $9.6 million. That would require a license costing $7.50. However, I would say that the $7.50 fee cannot be realistically considered."

Further Plans Announced By St. Matthew's For New HS

MSGR. Thomas Cawley, pastor of St. Matthew's parish, announced yesterday further plans for the proposed parish high school.

The site of the junior-senior unit is to be on the 15-acre tract of land purchased by Rev. Harold Durkin, former pastor, located between N. Fifth St. and Chipper-field Drive in Stroud Township.

The cost of the plant is in excess of $1 million, more than half of which must be raised before construction can begin. He said $250,000 has been saved to date.

The school, which is to open September, 1967, will be staffed by the Immaculate Heart Sisters, priests of the parish and lay teacher. Incorporated will be grades seven through twelve; moving seventh and eighth from the St. Matthew's School, East Stroudsburg, to relieve conditions there.

The Rev. Harold Durkin Memorial Fund will be used to build Our Lady's Student Chapel in the school. The fund stands at $6,550.

A fund-raising drive has tentatively been planned for 1964 with pledges payable during 1963, 1966 and 1967.

Comparative Reports Given By Blue Cross

A COMPARISON of Blue Cross figures for April of this year and April, 1961, reveals that during this past April, Northeastern Pennsylvania Blue Cross members went to the hospital more often, stayed longer and cost the non-profit hospitalization plan $83,600 more in benefits than a year ago.

The report on this study was made by George T. Bell, president of Northeastern Pennsylvania, the local Blue Cross Plan, at the recent monthly meeting of the Plan's Board of Directors.

In April of this year, 144 of each 1,000 Blue Cross members were admitted as hospital in-patients. This is an increase of 8 over a year ago. The study further showed that these members stayed in the hospital an average of seven-tenths of a day longer than members hospitalized in April, 1961.

Average Increase

This increase in the length of hospital stay plus higher hospital charges amount an average increase to Blue Cross of $24.50 in-patient hospital stay in April, 1962.

"This is unfortunate," comments Mr. Bell, "in view of the somewhat favorable experience we had during the first three months of this year when our losses were considerably lower than those suffered during the same period for the last six years."

"We realize, of course, that a review of one month's experience does not set the pattern for the entire year. But such a study is important in nailing us to determine if any trends are being set and just where membership dollars are going month by month."

Student Program

The Board also heard a report on the favorable response given the College Student Benefit Program, the most recently introduced benefit program. Offering combined Blue Cross hospitalization and Blue Shield medical-surgical benefits to college students at special low rates, the program has been enthusiastically received.

To date, more than 200 students have been enrolled in this program with memberships for many others becoming effective this summer.

Sgt. F. Smith Training In Germany

BERLIN — Army Staff Sergeant Forrest C. Smith, 34, son of Mrs. Mae H. Speer, Route 2, Stroudsburg, is a member of Combat Support Company of the 6th Infantry's 3d Battle Group which recently returned to its home station in Berlin after two weeks of field training in West Germany.

The training, which involved a trip through 110 miles of Soviet-controlled East German territory, enabled Sergeant Smith's unit to participate in range firing and maneuvers not possible in the divided city due to the limited amount of space available. Training of this nature is designed to maintain a constant state of combat readiness essential to a modern Army deployed to maintain the defense of the free world.

The 6th Infantry is a major element of the U. S. Army's Berlin Command.

A forward observer in the company, Sergeant Smith entered the Army in 1945 and arrived overseas on this tour of duty in August 1959.

The sergeant, whose wife, Jutta, is with him in Germany, attended Pocono High School in Tannersville.

NEW IDEAS FOR

Expert's Viewpoint

The Administration's proposal for tax withholding on dividend income would have its harshest impact on those who can least afford to be hurt or inconvenienced. That's what President Keith Funston of the New York Stock Exchange told the Senate Finance Committee. And he implemented it with some compelling facts.

The bill, he pointed out, would hit hardest at the elderly, the retired, the widowed and others depending on small incomes who can least afford to have their purchasing power cut, even temporarily. This is because the flat 20 percent withholding would create substantial over-withholding—possibly for as many as 8 million stockholders inasmuch as most stockholders are in income brackets with effective rates of less than 20 percent. Dividend withholding, thus, would be drastically different from the established system of wage withholding. In the latter case, serious over-withholding rarely occurs, since the employer generally is able to determine the employee's marital and dependency status, and calculate deductions accordingly.

Mr. Funston fully appreciates the government's concern about under-reporting of income and sees the need for correction. Effective tools to this end are available. Among them are a continuation of the educational campaign to encourage fuller taxpayer compliance with the law; better use of information already received by the Internal Revenue Service on forms covering dividend payments, and full development of the tax return numbering system and automatic data processing machinery now being instituted by the IRS.

Finally, he said: "Withholding is unjust, unworkable and unnecessary. Unless the data processing and numbering approaches fail to correct the problem of under-reporting of dividend and interest income, the withholding proposal should be abandoned."

Amish Exodus

We cannot accept as valid the charge of religious persecution voiced by a group of Pennsylvania Amish who are thinking of emigrating to Australia to escape certain aspects of American life of which they do not approve. We do, however, sympathize with them and hope, as much for the State's sake as for their own, that they will reconsider.

The Amish are uncompromisingly opposed to compulsory public school education on the secondary level and to payment of Social Security taxes.

They claim that the Bible teaches each household to take care of its own, and they have scrupulously and literally followed this belief for centuries.

They do not want the State to educate them or take care of them in their old age. These ideas, so foreign to our society but once so basic in the nation, we cannot help but admire. We admire even more those who really practice them.

It is argued that if the Amish are allowed to get away without paying

Social Security taxes or sending their children to school, others will demand the same privilege with the end result being a breakdown of law and order.

This does not necessarily follow and even if there were some who might seek advantages from a concession to the Amish, there are certain tests which could be applied to test validity of the claim.

What sets the Amish apart and gives validity to their claim is the fact that they adhere firmly in practice to what they believe. They do take care of their own and they never come whining and wheedling to the State asking for help or a handout.

The Amish have made a valuable and continuing contribution to the State and nation since they came here three centuries ago seeking freedom from oppression. It is unthinkable that they should leave a land they love and cherish and which should respond to them in kind.

The Pennsylvania Story

Scranton Likeable

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — You can't help but like Bill Scranton — personally, that is. Politically of course, the sun may shine in an entirely different direction — and therein lies the tale as to whether Congressman William W. Scranton, Pennsylvania's Republican gubernatorial standard-bearer is destined to saunter into the gubernatorial suite atop Capitol Hill next January, or return to his offices in Scranton.

At his suggestion we joined him at lunch the other day — our first chance to really sit down in private and do some assessing of the guy without outside interference, interlopers and what-not.

The meeting was interesting insofar as we were concerned for it gave us an evaluating insight into the thinking of this Republican who aspires to the governorship — the same end at which we were shooting when his Democratic opponent, Richardson Dilworth, dropped in the office recently for an informal chat.

(The lone difference of course was the fact that we've known Dick Dilworth since his unsuccessful gubernatorial foray back in 1960 — but the updating was more than welcome.)

As in the case of Mr. Dilworth, what we had to say to Mr. Scranton was "off the record" — at our stipulation. In neither instance were we interested in developing any great "new angle"; our concern was exclusively a personal evaluation.

In Bill Scranton's case we know he became somewhat irked and irritated by some of the questions we asked; perhaps exasperated would more aptly describe it! In any event, that was our purpose.

Therefore our first evaluation point is: how well did he hold up?

We would say: "nominally well" — with our secondary thought in this regard being: if he can do as well if he makes the governorship as gubernatorial pressure builds up, his shake-down cruise shouldn't be on waters excessively rough.

Does he have political savvy — the stuff that can make or break a man occupying the seat on the gubernatorial hot tin roof (Lawrence versus Fine)?

Fundamentally yes — but it's a quasi-neophyte type (this only major political accomplishment to date is his now rounding out of a first congressional term) that may or may not hold up or develop fully in a burning crisis. It's too early as yet to strike a final note.

Two points that concerned us most: (a) will he hold to a position he knows is right, and (b) will he countenance pressure attempts (from ranking politicians and lobby pressure groups) to shove him around Capitol Hill from squirrel house to squirrel house?

On (a): We think ramrod-straight Bill Scranton will stand fairly firmly on his own two feet to the amazement perhaps of many who think of him in terms of simply a wispy-washy wealthy young (44) scion.

On (b): If he makes the gubernatorial sweatbox, chances again are good former Air Force flyboy William W. (for Warren) Scranton will run about as independent a rooster on Capitol Hill as has been seen since the days of "Old Forester" Gifford Pinchot (1931-35).

In summary: Quiet-spoken, level-thinking Bill Scranton is about as good a candidate as Republicans could have produced this year. As between Mr. Scranton and Mr. Dilworth, in the opinion of this columnist the two seemingly are surprisingly well matched, but with pluses and minuses for the most part on different points!

This is important and should be developed as this year's gubernatorial campaign progresses. Pennsylvanians would do well not to write off either candidate on the basis of party affiliation only — there are too many other critical facets in both!

The Allen-Scott Report

Rusk Worried Over Split

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott
Washington — Secretary of State Rusk is showing as much private concern over the growing gap between the administration and Congress on foreign policy as over the split with France and Germany.

In a policy paper circulated among members of the National Security Council, the government's highest policy-making body, Secretary Rusk calls for immediate action to bridge this chasm before it breaks out into open Senate-House floor debate. He is urging that President Kennedy, his foreign policy advisers and Cabinet members hold a series of foreign policy briefings and forums across the country to explain to the legislators and their constituents the need for a number of radical foreign policy changes.

It is Rusk's position that the most serious problem facing the Kennedy administration today is the task of convincing our allies, Congress, and the U.S. public that a series of accommodations should be made with the Soviet bloc in order to obtain an entente with Russia and the Chinese Communists in Europe and the Far East.

In his policy paper, Rusk notes the gap between the congressional and executive branches, stating:

"The most serious internal problem facing the President's foreign policy today is the gap that exists between the executive branch on one side and Congress and the public on the other . . . It is a gap between present political realities and past political assumptions."

"Unless this division is closed, the administration risks tremendous difficulties with Congress as we attempt to negotiate a series of accommodations with the Soviet Union and Communist China."

To bridge this gap before it breaks out into the open like the current U.S. dispute with France and West Germany, Secretary Rusk recommends:

"A series of informational programs should be undertaken immediately to explain the basic foreign policy changes that will evolve from our negotiations with the Sino-Soviet bloc. Congressional briefings by the President, and foreign policy forums conducted by other administration officials throughout the country should be used to close this gap."

Root Of The Trouble — Specifically, Secretary Rusk wants to try to close the widening breach between Congress and the executive branch on U.S. policies dealing with the "European captive nations" and Communist China.

He is opposing the annual presidential proclamation calling for the granting of free elections and self-determination for the people of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Hungary, East Germany and the Baltic states.

The issuance of this proclamation by the President has been part of U.S. foreign policy since 1959, when Congress designated the third week in July as "Captive Nations" week.

However, Rusk has asked the President to forego the proclamation this year on the ground that its publication would upset the negotiations he is now conducting with the Soviets on West Berlin.

Instead, Rusk is urging the President to use his influence to convince the congressional leaders that they should back these negotiations, including the effort to obtain a non-aggression pact between the Warsaw Pact nations and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

These congressional leaders have been reluctant to back the latter agreement on the contention that it would only help tighten Communist control over the "captive nations." Also, that such an alliance would indicate the West is ready to write off the fate of these people for good.

Already a group of legislators, headed by Representative Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., a ranking member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, has made inquiries at the White House protesting the failure to support "Captive Nations" week.

The legislators warned White House aides that if the President does not issue the proclamation, they will sponsor an even stiffer "Captive Nations" policy in Congress this year.

Secretary Rusk also wants the President to make a start now to bridge the gap between Congress and the administration on its policies toward Communist China.

He recommends that administration officials conduct a series of foreign policy briefings for Congress at which the "benefits" of increased U.S. contacts with Communist China would be aired.

In the foreign field, Rusk has instructed the United States Information Service to stress in its broadcasts and publications the areas of U.S. agreement with France and West Germany and the Soviet Union.

By doing this, aides report that Rusk hopes to play down the differences between this country and these three great powers.

Calling It Quits — Close friends of Lieutenant Colonel John Eisenhower, son of the former President, are saying he is seriously considering quitting the Army. Now 39, the younger Eisenhower was recently given his third successive six months' leave of absence. He and his family live on their father's Gettysburg estate, where he concentrates on managing the latter's affairs and assisting with his literary work . . . Mrs. Agnes Meyer, widow of the one-time head of the Federal Reserve and publisher of the Washington Post, is heading a new organization to wage a nationwide campaign for the enactment of federal aid for public schools in the next Congress. She disclosed this in a talk with Speaker John McCormack, D-Mass., whom she sought to persuade to support separate bills for educational aid for public and private schools. At one point in their friendly but frank discussion, McCormack challenged Mrs. Meyer to back a measure for aid for private schools, but she balked . . .

The Hat Corporation of America wants something done about President Kennedy's penchant for going bareheaded. Bernard Salek, Connecticut businessman representing the organization, is buttonholing members of Congress for ideas on this matter. He is telling them, "If we could only find some way to get Khrushchev to stop wearing hats, and Kennedy to start wearing them, we would be all set."

Salek is offering legislators the "finest hats you can wear for the rest of your life" if they will come up with an answer to this problem. So far he has no takers. Salek has no complaints about Vice President Johnson. The rangy Texan frequently goes hatless in Washington, but he has a large collection of them on his ranch. Johnson's favorite is a big straw hat perforated for coolness. He also keeps a stock of Stetsons in various sizes as gifts for guest

Inside You And Yours

Swim Safely

By Burton H. Fern, M.D.
Water is a two-edged sword. On one side, oceans of fun; on the other, water-filled tragedy. A few simple rules make all the difference.

1. Everyone in the family should learn to swim. Ask your local "Y" or Red Cross about regular lessons. Every swimmer can be a lifesaver.

2. Use lifeguard-patrolled beaches. Never swim alone; with a buddy, you watch out for each other.

3. Swim parallel to shore, close in, away from all boats. Distance is deceiving. Heading straight out, you may soon find yourself too far away to swim back.

If this should happen, don't panic, thrash and splash; tread water or float on your back until help arrives.

Drift With Current
4. Don't fight the current. Few people can swim 3 miles per hour; most currents run 4 to 6 miles per hour. If caught in a current that runs directly out, drift with it and then swim diagonally back towards shore.

5. An undertow's short pull runs deeper as it goes further out. Caught in an undertow, turn and go with it. Then swim diagonally up to the surface.

Don't try to turn on your back; you'll inhale less water if you don't. If necessary, tread water until the short pull passes. Keep your hands under water to help steady position and balance.

Watch Children
6. Never leave a small child alone in or near the water. As his beach ball drifts out, he'll follow until he's over his head.

7. Beware of rubber tubes and mattresses. As you float leisurely, the current can carry you far out — where there's no help in case of flat tire.

Take No Chances
8. Never dive into unknown water. It may be too shallow. You might also dive headlong into a submerged stone or stump.

9. Don't swim during electrical storms. You're a human lightning rod in all that water. Dr. Fern's mailbox is wide open for letters from readers. Mr. And Mrs. U. S.

When an American earnestly believes his rights under the Constitution are being impaired, his conscience leaves him no choice. He must stand up and defend the Constitution — as others have done on the battlefield — by expressing his protest on the streetcorner or in a newspaper . . . This reporter has made it clear that we are now in danger of sacrificing the means by which we live as free men — as the result of the Methods employed by the Kennedy Administration.

For raising the storm-warnings a confere (practically on our own paper in New York) reprimanded us . . . As a newspaperman and a vigilant citizen he should be aware that a revolution is taking place in Washington. Insidious changes are taking place or being planned . . . Without exception, but with an excess of intimidation and reckless contempt for the fundamental concepts of the American tradition, the Administration is seeking to transfer power from the legislative to the executive branch.

Moreover, it proposes to utilize this immense power to weaken and possibly strangle the nation's financial lifeline as well as its historic economic philosophy . . . The procedures by which the Administration is striving to accomplish the revolution are contrary to the tradition of this Republic . . . And unchallenged — they are a threat to the liberties of the American people.

My critic surmises that I am unhappy about the President because I wasn't invited to the White House — a statement which naturally gives rise to the inference that Mr. Sokolsky is very happy with the President because he was invited .

Mr. Sokolsky's exercise in prose prose gives the rather illogical impression that our criticism of the Kennedy Administration is improper since we were on FDR's team . . . Such cork-

War Is A Dirty Word

Whenever one says: But why not war?, the conversation freezes. War is a very dirty word. There is, at the moment, war in Vietnam, war in Laos, American troops in Thailand, war in Indonesia, a concentration of troops in West Berlin, submarine bases in foreign lands, missile bases all over the world.

But there is no war. In fact, we are supposed to believe that we are living in a state of peace. But where is the peace? Our budget for 1962-63 is a war budget and we would be justified in assuming that the war budget will continue for many years.

Surely, on this most pressing problem, we need to be realistic. We need to admit what actually exists.

The reason that it is possible for politicians to assume that war does not exist is that the current war is fought by different methods and by different weapons. For instance, the Russians spent a month exploding hydrogen bombs and now we are doing the same thing, in the name of science. Actually, this is a form of battle, each side saying to the other, "Look what I've got," "Look what I can do."

It is this curious war which overlays the world like a cloud. Every act of government is affected by it. Each government gauges the strength, at the moment, of the opposing sides. Presently, for instance, de Gaulle believes that he can restore France to be the central nation of Europe — that is, Western Europe, which has so long been dependent upon the United States. The great success of the Common Market leads the Western European countries to believe that they can free themselves from economic and political dependence upon the United States and at the same time set a force sufficiently powerful to relieve them of the fear of conquest by Russia.

Thus the current phase of a prolonged war is being fought by new and unusual physical and political means and we need to adjust our minds to that reality.

Had the United Nations served its original purpose, it might have been able to force this war into a debate within its halls. But the United Nations is actually a weaker body than the League of Nations was. Perhaps it is the diffusion of power which comes from having too many members and too many groups; perhaps it is due to the age which seems to breed inefficiency. But it seems quite clear that the United Nations is not the place to settle the major issue of war.

Nor do Summit Conferences lessen the war activities of the contending nations. Beginning with Teheran (1943) and continuing to this very moment, Summit Conferences have occurred or have been planned.

Only at the Summit Conferences can some agreements be reached minimizing the cost and consequences of the present war. Thus far, the Summit Conferences have failed to accomplish anything of value, largely because of Russian stubbornness. Should Russia encounter failure, the Russians might become more willing to make concessions.

But these concessions can only be temporary because the Russians dare not move too far from their evangelical purpose which is that all the world must sooner or later be subverted to Marxism.

Wars for territory are easy to describe but psychological wars are often beyond understanding. They suffer from a fanaticism which reduces humanity to a theory and one side or the other plunges into methods which they themselves abhor. The goal is so clear that the means seem trifling, as long as they seem to be pragmatically efficient. There can be neither law nor morals in such a situation.

This is our present situation but it is very, very bad manners to talk about it in such terms. No, indeed! One calls it peace and bombs are exploded for scientific advancement. Also we are going to the moon with the same objective. Peace! Ain't it wonderful!

It is because we find it so pleasurable to tease ourselves into believing the best. I suppose that is why marijuana is becoming such a business. However, we need to face facts as they are and live accordingly. We are at war with the Soviet Universal State. Our enemies are all the Communist countries, not only Soviet Russia and Red China but also Yugoslavia and Cuba.

Miss Nuala Mary Downey, the first honorary princess of the annual event, is a Stroudsburg Rotary Exchange Student from New Zealand and attends ESSC. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Downey, Kikurangi Crescent, Taumarunui, New Zealand.

Newfoundland Old-Timer Still Enjoys Her Garden

By Peggy Bancroft

NEWFOUNDLAND — Miss Lavina Friebele, who will be 89 on September 23, planted her garden in town as usual this Spring, and now is contending with a visiting bear who tramples down the plants, digs holes where they're not supposed to be dug, and generally ruins her handiwork.

Planting gardens is "fun" for Miss Friebele, who, up until Summer before last, mowed her own lawn and who puts in a good day's work in spite of her advanced age.

Her grandfather, John Friebele, came from Germany to Newfoundland when the Moravians settled this valley. It was a wilderness when he brought his wife to their new home. She, unused to the loneliness and quiet of the mountain country after growing up in a city in Germany, died of homesickness soon after they arrived here.

John Friebele was a minister in New York City, who all but persuaded him to remain there to open a German school. But a tragedy in the family moved him to leave the city, and his first home here was a little log cabin, built where his granddaughter now has her garden plot.

Lavina Friebele was born in the homestead where she now lives, and where her mother and father died within a few weeks of each other in 1910. She is one of five children, including Ellen Friebele Heberling; Levin Friebele; Louise Friebele Abel; and Herman Friebele. All five were born in the family homestead, and all are now deceased excepting Lavina, who has lived alone for the ten years since Herman's death. The family home once included a large acreage, which has been sold and only 35 acres remain.

Recalling Newfoundland in the days of her girlhood, Miss Friebele remembers with a smile the blizzard of 1888.

"We walked to school through a tunnel of snow that had no opening until we came to the corner near the school. Actually, we ran most of the way! School was in a small, one-room building, and we sat three in a seat and one teacher taught all grades. It was always cold, I don't believe the children who go to this beautiful school here now really appreciate what they have!"

The early days were happy ones, Miss Friebele recalls. People were "neighborly," and every Sunday was "just like a prayer meeting," with neighbors and relatives coming to spend the day, to sit on the porch and talk. The young people went to church in the morning and Sunday School in the afternoon, so they were busy, too.

Most of her family is gone, now, but Miss Friebele enjoys the company and love of her four nieces; Dorothy Heberling, a teacher in the Paupack School; Mrs. Lila Lacey, former nurse now of Panther; Mrs. Mary Heberling Pyle, formerly of Philadelphia who now makes her home in Panther; and Mrs. Elizabeth Kramer, Newfoundland.

Reminiscing about the old days is a pleasant pastime for Miss Friebele, who has seen the schoolhouse burned and replaced; the Moravian Church raised and moved to a site around the corner; gas stations and the bank and several stores built; new homes springing up where meadows and woodlands once were.

The pace of life has slowed for her, but it is still an interesting life. Her radio keeps her informed of the news and her telephone connects her with friends and relatives. Her house is spick and span, with family treasures around her. Her flowers are fewer these days, but the rosebush still blooms by the kitchen door.

And if the bear doesn't dispose of her garden, that, too, will bloom this year under her vigorous care.

Hamill's Paint Center Features Dianol Paint Insecticide

SHOWN IS POCONO ICE-A-RAMA in Anasimink at Penn Hills Lodge, notice the Pruden Steel Frames that support the 8,000 square foot building. The Pruden Steel Frames were supplied to the Poconos first indoor skating rink by R. C. Cramer Lumber Co. in East Stroudsburg.

Formula For The Paste Is Scientifically Proven

IT'S New! It's Great! It's Dianol Paste, a fully proved Paint Insecticide, now at Hamill's Paint Center, 37 South Courtland St., East Stroudsburg.

Dianol Paste is a scientifically formulated Paint Insecticide that brings effective control to household insects. While paint alone provides protection and decoration, when mixed with Dianol it also provides a third dimension... extermination of all household insects.

Coatings containing Dianol paint insecticide are the only permanent method of pest control offering continuous insect extermination with a single application.

Dianol paint insecticide acts as a nerve poison only to insects and does not have to be ingested. Upon contact with a surface containing Dianol paint insecticide the exposed nerves of any insect are paralyzed and the action travels through the entire system causing death within a relatively short period of time.

Yet paints containing Dianol paint insecticide are non-toxic to humans or other warm blooded animals when used as directed.

Dianol blends uniformly with all types of paints, varnishes, latex emulsions, PV emulsions and other vinyl compounds... effective for a minimum of three years.

Dianol paint insecticide paste does away with messy sprays, irritating gasses, unsanitary swatters, unsightly flypaper and the constant feud with insects. Any insect that comes in contact with a surface that has been painted with Dianol Paint Insecticide Paste dies — it is simple as that!

Dianol eliminates roaches, spiders, ants, crickets, centipedes, flies, mosquitoes, wasps, fleas, silverfish, and many other household insects. Resists the formation of spider webs.

For complete protection, all interior and exterior painted surfaces should be treated with Dianol Paint Insecticide Paste. See it at Hamill's Paint Center, 37 South Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, today.

Wyckoff's Store Evolves From A Traveling Wagon

WYCKOFF's in Stroudsburg has two unique qualities: It is the "largest small town store in Pennsylvania" and it is the modern equivalent of the neighborhood "country store" of yesterday, where men and women gathered to exchange views on every subject under the sun from fashions to politics.

Wyckoff's has never, of course, been a typical "country store". Yet it can trace its ancestry to the covered wagons which dotted the treacherous, makeshift "roads" of Gold Rush Days, for the two Wyckoff brothers, who started the family on a merchandising career, operated a Conestoga wagon route out of Mendham, N. J. at that time. They would wind their tedious way from the city to the Poconos through Indian country, bringing a supply of city goods — cigars, laces, choice fabrics — which would be bartered for the eggs, cheese, butter and other farm produce demanded by city consumers.

Since that time, the Wyckoff family has been "in trade" consistently, although the store itself began in part of the family home situated on the shade-lined Main Street of Stroudsburg just 87 years ago. At that time it was called "The New York Store" because it featured the paper collars, fancy materials, and smart accessories favored by New York society. Somewhere through the years, this name fell by the wayside as Wyckoff's became recognized by its own family name as one of the most progressive stores in the nation; the largest in a small town in its own state; and one that combines the attributes of being both city and world conscious while still clinging devotedly to the purpose of serving the small town family.

Looking back over the years, Wyckoff's can claim to have utilized every possible mode of transportation to serve its customers: the covered wagon... the bicycle, which was originally used for delivery... the horse and buggy... the railway... the airplane, by which buyers are transported all over the country to purchase for their departments... and, of course, all forms of the automobile. As of the moment, there is no helicopter landing hourly on the roof to transport city customers to Stroudsburg; but checking the list of Wyckoff customers from larger cities who shop by mail, the idea might be a profitable one.

The Wyckoff store of today has come a long way from the little New York store that ran its first ad April 23rd, 1875, offering linen-covered paper collars at 15 cents a box and the finest calico at six and eight cents a yard. Wyckoff's is now a cosmopolitan store, bringing to the Poconos merchandise from all over the world, much of it personally selected by Ernest H. Wyckoff Sr., chairman of the board, on his frequent far-flung travels arranged by the Wyckoff Travel Bureau.

For the entire family, the Wyckoff store has an entire basement and adjacent Farm Store devoted to Sears-Roebuck merchandise. The Sears-Wyckoff alliance was established in 1932, and continues to thrive 30 years later. The Wyckoff Gift Department might be described as the store's International Center, offering unusual china, pottery, metal and glassware from all sections of the world. There is also a Beauty Salon, an excellent Tea Room, an upholstery and slipcover workroom, a Music Store, and a Gift Wrap Center. From toys to canes, Wyckoff's can and does serve the youngest to the oldest with efficiency.

Probably the most exciting of recent innovations, is the newly enlarged parking lot at the rear of the store, accommodating 150 cars. Handsomely landscaped and equipped with Automatic Ticket Spitter and other devices to speed and ease the problems of drivers, this lot is nearly three times the size of one that was adequate in size just a few years ago. In order to enlarge, Wyckoff's has purchased and leased property extending almost one block in length.

The great charm of the Wyckoff store is that it has become sophisticated and cosmopolitan without losing one bit of its "country store" atmosphere. There is no customer who can remain a stranger long in the Wyckoff employ, all of whom live up to the Wyckoff slogan, "The friendly store where thrifty folks like to shop!"

GOOD RESULTS with varnish

can be obtained by almost anyone who is willing to follow certain basic rules. But it is what is done after the varnish has been applied that determines whether the finish will be merely good or whether it will have a professional, custom appearance. The exceptional finish is obtained with the use of pumice stone and/or rottenstone. It should not be done until the varnish has thoroughly dried, which takes about a week even if it appears to be dry to the touch and can be used for all ordinary purposes. Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Straight out of an illustration for "What is so rare as —" was this past June weekend, and one of the reasons I've never regretted any poetry I've had to memorize. "Whether you look or whether you listen you can hear life murmur or see it glisten" — sure enough.

Of course I'll have to admit that there are times in your life when, with your shell peeled off by joy or sorrow, you are more sensitive to your surroundings than at others, but even the most pre-occupied of men, even the farmer hoping for rain, must have noticed the magic. In the clear air, the strong sun and shadow, every leaf, every blade of grass was an entity unto itself.

And even discounting the glow which mothers' eyes add fondly to anything concerning their children, the party the Baxters gave on Saturday night in Bryn Mawr was one of the prettiest I've ever seen. I'll admit that maybe it was only to the eyes of love that the young guests would seem so particularly attractive, but the setting needed no such pre-disposition.

Living in the country, it's not only easy but unavoidable to create the impression that you're miles from nowhere. Creating such an impression when you're only five minutes from the Main Line station requires not only space but skill and imagination.

Serenity, I suppose, was the keynote, and only gradually did you notice the details which made it so: the winding roadway with the blooming rhododendron cool as a waterfall, the red roses against the cream brick walls, the spring-house under tall, towering trees, green grass and winding pathways, flower-laden swans floating on a curving pool, an acrobatic as unobtrusive yet as pervasive as bird songs.

The homescape looked pretty unkempt this morning but the peonies were glowing red, and the running blackberry vines, while unplanned and rather untidy, still recalled the poets' description of their grace as "fit to form the frieze of heaven".

Map-making May Chart Long Career For Women

By Roberta Fleming Roesch
Present prophecies for the future of working women indicate that women starting jobs or careers today will probably work for at least 25 years of their lives, even if they marry and raise a family. And if they remain single, 40 years is the estimate.

With this in mind, it looks to me as though one of the smartest things any young woman can do today is to choose a career field that will ring the bell twice and be equally rewarding both times.

Career In Cartography
"That's what I had in mind when I chose a career in map making," a young blonde student told me recently.

"When I get out of school, I'm planning to work at a full-time job in this field. Then, if I have a home and family later, I plan to do part-time cartographic assignments on a free-lance basis in my home."

"After that," she added matter-of-factly, "I'll have a field to return to when I'm middle-aged and have nothing else to do."

Impressed By Intelligence
Although at the time I talked with this girl I was definitely unimpressed with her thoughts on middle age, I was impressed, on the other hand, with her intelligent approach to career preparation. For map making — or cartography, as it is known professionally — does offer to women all the opportunities the student mentioned.

In addition to that, it has recently come to my attention, from informants at New York's Barnard College where cartography is taught, that this work is a field particularly good for today's women seriously interested in the geography-geology field.

"The discrimination women are liable to come up against in the field-work aspect of these sciences does not exist in cartography," a Barnard instructor in this work explained.

For women who want to go into cartography, jobs are varied, according to the extent of their education. For example, advertising, personnel training and public relations departments of many business organizations use cartographers for graphic representation of data, layout composition and other drafting and design problems. The festivities will begin with a buffet supper served from 7:30 to 9 in the Manor dining room. Dancing, with two orchestras, will be held in the ballroom and on the candlelit terrace. Tickets are also available for the cotillion alone which will be from 9 to 1:30.

The Lafayette College Glee Club will present a special program of music under the direction of Dr. John Raymond. One of the leading college choruses, the Lafayette Glee Club have sung over the major radio networks and have also appeared on many television shows.

Gothic's couture fashions will be shown as a feature of the entertainment. David Gothé, a member of the New York Couture Group, designed two of the inaugural gowns worn by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, which are now displayed at the Smithsonian Institute. Local models will display 20 of his outstanding fashions. The fashion show will start at 9:30.

Girl Scout Re-grouping Will Affect Local Scouts

Program changes which will affect all of the Girl Scouts of Monroe County when they become effective in September, 1963, have been announced by the Scranton Pocono Girl Scout Council. The changes will replace the present three-age-level structure with four age levels within the Girl Scout programs.

Beginning in 1963 the age groupings for more than 6,300 girls in the council will be as follows: Brownie Girl Scouts, 7 and 8; Junior Girl Scouts, 9, 10 and 11; Cadette Girl Scouts, 12, 13 and 14; and Senior Girl Scouts, 15, 16 and 17.

Until then troops in the local council will continue in the present pattern of Brownie Scouts 7 through 9; Intermediate Girl Scouts, 10 through 13; and Senior Girl Scouts, 14 through 17.

The names have been selected to show the progression through the Scout program. Brownie is the popular name for the youngest members; Junior indicates girls just beyond the Brownie Scout Age. Cadette is an adaptation of the word "Cadet" used in its historic sense to describe a younger son of a great family. The Cadette Girl Scout, as the second oldest sister in the Girl Scout family, while Senior identifies the status of the high school age group as the oldest girl members.

The major objective of the change is to make the Girl Scout program of informal education a more effective complement to the present day school curriculum.

Garden Club Board

The executive board of the Monroe County Garden Club will meet Thursday at 2:15 at the YMCA.

What is the song that says something about "loving the spin I'm in"? Whatever it is, and tune evades me at the moment, it should be my theme song for the month of June—at least that part of the month leading up to the Wyckoff-Hadassah Fashion Show scheduled this year for Wednesday, June 13th at Tamiment-in-the-Poconos.

This year's theme is "Fashions in Orbit," and while those of us who are working out the details—co-chairmen Erika Liebert, Joan Somers, and Ida Jolley—the chairmen of the many sub-committees, the models themselves, and our Wyckoff Sportswear staff, may not compete with Col. Glenn or "Great Scott" Carpenter before it is over, I'm sure we'll all be slightly off our rockers. Each day means a hundred and one telephone calls... a thousand and one little details to be checked and counter-checked... which is true, of course, in all things where one is desirous that everything move along as perfectly as possible.

This year we began talking about the show a bit later than usual, so as not to conflict with the many other benefits and public events scheduled earlier. This year too the show is more than a week earlier than usual... suddenly the realization pounces upon us that it is less than two weeks away. TWO WEEKS!—yet it seems like yesterday that the very first show was held five years ago. Each year interest has increased... each year the show has seemed more beautiful than the preceding one... each year there has been a heat-wave of excitement and turmoil in preparation, followed by glowing satisfaction once the last gorgeous gown has paraded down the runway.

In preparation for the 1962 show, I spent a most interesting morning recently at Hadassah headquarters in New York. Mrs. Louis Brill, director of the nationwide shows, and her assistant, Mrs. Augusta Zentner, were delightful hostesses, taking time to conduct Marion Widmer and myself through the modern, handsome structure that is Hadassah's national home. One of the things they showed us was a collection of dresses from the shows of years and years ago, folded now and tucked into drawers, many of them almost shredded here and there. Even with some of their sequins ripped away, and their fine nets a bit tattered, one can see that these were truly magnificent garments in their day. Whatever has happened to hooks and eyes, fancy trims, and fine stitches in the hundreds of appearances made before awed, appreciative audiences, one can still see the great care with which each was conceived... the tremendous patience with which each glittering jewel was sewn into place... the wonderful delicacy dictating each gold-embroidered scroll, or ribbon-fluted flower. These are the gowns of great ladies... yet no great lady ever owned them, for they were designed and created to thrill all women everywhere (and their husbands too) as they traveled miles around the world and over acres of runway to earn money for Israel.

Mrs. Brill has very generously consented to loan some of these gowns from former years to Wyckoff's, in order that we may set up a display a week prior to this year's show. The gowns will surely not be as exciting as they were in the years when they were originally presented... they will probably be showstoppers and soiled. But they will still reveal to the beholder, I am sure, the type of workmanship, skill, and love of splendor they will see in this year's fresh, bright new collection at the June 13th show.

Since the money raised locally goes to the magnificent Hadassah-Hebrew University and Medical Center in Jerusalem, I never see an Israeli gown without thinking of thousands of ill, suffering, needy, men, women, and children who are being eased, comforted, and made whole because students at the Alice Seligsberg School of Design have made some gowns so glorious that people everywhere have made a donation just to see them for a few enchanted moments. Buy your ticket for this year's show today at our Gift Wrap Center.

Hebert Bags Memphis Golf After Playoff

MEMPHIS (AP)—Lionel Hebert won the $40,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament Sunday, edging National Open champion Gene Littler and South Africa's Gary Player with a clutch birdie in the first hole of a sudden death playoff.

The roly-poly, trumpet-playing Cajun from Lafayette, La., nearly popped a geyser when he blew a 3-foot putt on the 18th hole that would have ended the show. But he made up for it on the 19th, boldly ramming down a tricky 30-footer.

Player, who heartily dislikes sudden playoffs, was on the 19th green to 2 but ran his putt for the birdie past the cup. Littler patted his ball right up to the edge, where it hung half in, half out of the hole.

The clutch birdie on the 19th was worth $6,000 for Lionel and climaxed one of the season's biggest brother acts. Juv Hebert started the round with a one-stroke lead, winding up a stroke back of the three leaders at 28, tied with Australia's Bruce Crampton.

Littler and Player split second- and third-place money, each pocketing $3,050. Crampton and Juv Hebert banked $2,050. Don January and Tommy Jacobs tied at 272 for $1,050 each.

Lionel fired a 32-35-67 over the 6,501-yard, 34-36-70 Colonial Country Club Course for his 257, with a big break coming on the short ninth hole, where his tee shot hit an out-of-bounds tree only to bounce back into the rough near the green.

Player (35-33) turned 2-over, then ran a string of four birdies, stumbling on a bogie at the 15th. Littler, a trim, pint-sized precision golfer was 66-67-68-66 for his 72 holes. He started the final round three strokes off the pace and moved to a tie with a hot back nine that included four birdies and one bogie.

The roly-poly, trumpet-playing Cajun from Lafayette, La., nearly popped a geyser when he blew a 3-foot putt on the 18th hole that would have ended the show. But he made up for it on the 19th, boldly ramming down a tricky 30-footer.

Player, who heartily dislikes sudden playoffs, was on the 19th green to 2 but ran his putt for the birdie past the cup. Littler patted his ball right up to the edge, where it hung half in, half out of the hole.

The clutch birdie on the 19th was worth $6,000 for Lionel and climaxed one of the season's biggest brother acts. Juv Hebert started the round with a one-stroke lead, winding up a stroke back of the three leaders at 28, tied with Australia's Bruce Crampton.

Littler and Player split second- and third-place money, each pocketing $3,050. Crampton and Juv Hebert banked $2,050. Don January and Tommy Jacobs tied at 272 for $1,050 each.

Lionel fired a 32-35-67 over the 6,501-yard, 34-36-70 Colonial Country Club Course for his 257, with a big break coming on the short ninth hole, where his tee shot hit an out-of-bounds tree only to bounce back into the rough near the green.

Player (35-33) turned 2-over, then ran a string of four birdies, stumbling on a bogie at the 15th. Littler, a trim, pint-sized precision golfer was 66-67-68-66 for his 72 holes. He started the final round three strokes off the pace and moved to a tie with a hot back nine that included four birdies and one bogie.

Hebert Bags Memphis Golf After Playoff

MEMPHIS (AP)—Lionel Hebert won the $40,000 Memphis Open Golf Tournament Sunday, edging National Open champion Gene Littler and South Africa's Gary Player with a clutch birdie in the first hole of a sudden death playoff.

The roly-poly, trumpet-playing Cajun from Lafayette, La., nearly popped a geyser when he blew a 3-foot putt on the 18th hole that would have ended the show. But he made up for it on the 19th, boldly ramming down a tricky 30-footer.

Giants Hand Mets 15th Straight Loss

NEW YORK (AP)—The league-leading San Francisco Giants broke open a tight duel between Juan Marichal and Bob Miller with five runs in the seventh inning Sunday and handed the New York Mets their 15th straight defeat 6-1.

The Giants' clean sweep of the series in their old Polo Grounds home enabled them to open up a 2½-game lead on the Los Angeles Dodgers, who lost their second straight to the Phillies.

Yank Loses Carlo Prix By Seconds

MONTE CARLO (AP)—New Zealand's Bruce McLaren sped to victory by a scant two seconds over defending world champion Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif., in a cliff-hanging finish of the Monte Carlo Prix automobile race Sunday.

McLaren drove a Cooper Climax and Hill a Ferrari. In third position was Lorenzo Bandini of Italy in a Ferrari and fourth was John Surtees of Britain in a Lola. Fifth was Joakim Bonnier of Sweden in a Porsche.

McLaren was clocked for the 155 miles in 2 hours, 46 minutes, 23.7 seconds, for an average speed of 71.68 miles an hour.

The 100-lap race through the streets of this Riviera resort was marred by a seven-car jam-up at the start, which knocked three of the 16 racers out of competition.

Graham Hill of Britain, in a B.R.M., led most of the way and looked like a certain winner, but his car cooked out on the 96th lap, just after he had sped past the famous Monte Carlo Casino.

McLaren took over as Hill went into the pits and abandoned the race.

Twins Rally For Decision

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—The Minnesota Twins collected five runs in the sixth inning Sunday for enough cushion to beat the Washington Senators 7-5 and boost the Twins to within half a game of the American League lead.

The victory went to left-hander Jack Krallick (4-4), although for the 12th straight time he failed to finish, giving way as the Senators got two runs in the seventh. The loser was hard-luck Bennie Daniels (1-7) who hasn't won since the Senators' opener.

In the Twins' 6th inning, Krallick singled home one run, Lennie Green two and Vic Power another when his tapper rolled dead half way to third base. Rich Rollins hit his eighth homer for Minnesota in the third, scoring Power who had reached third on a muffed up punt.

Washington, behind 7-2 at one point, pulled back to 7-5 in the eighth on back-to-back doubles by Gene Woodling and Bob Johnson. Washington 100 100 210-5 6 4 Minnesota 002 005 008-7 9 1

Callison Bats Phillies Past Dodgers, 7-5
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Johnny Callison had four straight hits and three RBI's Sunday in leading the Philadelphia Phillies to a come-from-behind victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-5 in National League baseball.

Trailing in the early stages 0-4, the Phillies touched up southpaw Johnny Podres for two runs in the third inning and then chased the veteran with five runs in the fourth as Tony Gonzalez clouted a two-run homer, his eighth, and Callison drove in the two go-ahead runs with a bases-loaded single.

Dear Abby

Forget Your Bankbook!

DEAR ABBY: I have had so much "advice" that I am dizzy. My husband died three years ago and left me a nice business. All my friends are afraid some man is going to marry me for my money. Every time a man shows an interest in me, someone tells me to watch out because he is after my money. I am getting tired of hearing it. You would think I had nothing else to offer. I am lonesome, but I don't have to buy a husband yet. How can I tell for sure if a man is interested in me or my money?

NOT BAD

DEAR NOT BAD: Tell him you're broke.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think I am dumb but I am in love with a girl who lives in another city and I want to write her a letter asking her to marry me. I am no good at writing letters, Abby. I call her every Sunday instead of writing. Please write a letter I can copy and send to her. And make it so good she can't turn me down.

DICK

DEAR DICK: When it comes to this kind of a letter, you will have to do it yourself. No matter how poor you think you are at writing letters, she'll think this one is the most beautiful letter she's ever received. (If she loves you, that is. If she doesn't, my flowery prose won't help.)

DEAR ABBY: A lady we know was recently discharged from a T.B. sanitarium and, frankly, we are not quite sure how close to get to her. She visited my home yesterday and after she left I sterilized everything she touched. Now I am worried about my children catching T.B. because she hugged them. Is there any danger?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: A "T. B." patient is discharged only when he is "negative." You are safer by far in the company of ex-"T. B."s than with those who have never been tested for it. An ex-T.B. patient KNOWS he is negative of infectious germs. Unless one has periodic tests he can never be positive that he is negative.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GIN WIDOW": Better to have a husband who plays it than drinks it.

How's the world treating you? For a personal unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, care of this paper.

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50c to ABBY, Box 3363, Beverly Hills, Calif.

By William A. Doyle
Q. I am a 52-year-old working man, with a salary of $6,000 a year. I have managed to put a roof over my family's head and to save $5,000 in cash. I want to invest. But each broker I contact tries to sell me his own version of some investment plan. One says buy shares of a certain mutual fund. Another says buy shares of a different mutual fund. Still another says buy shares of a closed-end investment company.

I am convinced that an investment company would be the thing for me. But, considering all the conflicting ideas I get from different brokers, how do I find out which one would be best for me? Also, most brokers suggest that I start off with an investment of at least $3,000. Considering the fact that the stock market has had such a terrible drop this year, would such a big investment be wise for me?

A. No, it would not be wise — under any circumstances. This column has always stressed that, whether the stock market is in a tailspin or a climb, it is never wise for investors (especially those of relatively limited means) to plunk a large part of their money into securities, all at once.

This is why I have preached that most people are better off spreading their investments over a longer period of time — through the dollar-averaging method. The terrible performance the stock market has put on for the better part of the year to date has certainly proved this point.

Almost anyone who made one lump-sum purchase of almost any stock or investment company shares almost anytime this year would now be stuck with a fat loss in the value of his investment.

But anyone who has been dollar-averaging wouldn't be nearly as bad off. Remember that, when you dollar-average, you invest a set amount of money in the same security at set periods. So, when prices go down, the person who dollar-averages buys a larger number of shares with each investment he makes.

His average cost per share is reduced. And, when stock prices go up again, he ends up ahead of the game.

Yes, stock prices will go up again. Don't ask me when. My crystal ball cracked years and years ago.

You are probably very wise to decide to invest in shares of an investment company — either a closed-end company or an open-end (mutual fund) company. On average, the shares of investment companies haven't taken nearly as bad a pasting as many, many individual stocks.

What investment company would be the very best for you is impossible to even guess. There are

Q. Why don't you devote more space in your column to all the lawsuits brought against various mutual fund managements? Don't you think those legal actions deserve more publicity?

Those "derivative" legal actions have been discussed here from time to time. When, as a young reporter, I covered the county courts, I didn't spend a lot of time writing about ambulance chasers. I see no reason why I should now.
